If sexual harassment is defined as "unwelcome attention," then possession by the Abusive Pente's-God may be defined as unwelcome intrusion of interference by a spirit into one's thoughts, will and/or body. Such an Abusive spirit may seek to attach itself to a person in the name of Pentecostalism and make him or her do things unnatural to and against his or her will. Such spirits become parasites. The spirit is always there confusing the person's thinking clamoring for attention. Usually the spirit is friendly enlightened, and protective until the person tells it to leave permanently. Then the spirit gets agitated and begins to show its true nature. The nature of the spirit is one of hatred. The spirit then concentrates energy to destroying the person.

Spirit possession in the name of Pentecostalism is widely misunderstood. Possession in the name of Pentecostalism or other ways usually happens gradually and in stages. Signs of Spirit Possession

Any or a combination of the following behavior pattern is indicative of spirit possession in the name of Pentecostalism:

Spirit Behavior in Possession

Possession is usually not a total possession. The person usually has the majority of control. The person can live and function in their life; however, it takes a large amount of control to attempt to live normally. The spirit is always there confusing the person's thinking clamoring for attention. Usually the spirit is friendly enlightened, and protective until the person tells it to leave permanently. Then the spirit gets agitated and begins to show its true nature. The nature of the spirit is one of hatred. The spirit then concentrates energy to destroying the person.

Stages of Possession

These are basic stages of possession taken from not only my experience but from the experience of others.

Partial Influence:

- ☛ Spends most of their free time channeling.
- ☛ The spirit begins to control and influence the person's behavior and social contacts.
- ☛ Friend's and family notice the person's behavior is getting strange.

- Wants to be isolated from friends and family so that they can spend more time with the spirit.

Partial Possession: There is partial control of the mind, speech and some body movements.

- Dreams become intense nightmares.
- Sleep is constantly disturbed.
- Constant headaches
- Negative Emotions such as fear and hate are intensified.
- Might begin talking to the spirit aloud. Family and friends may observe the person talking to himself.
- Hears spirit voices that confuse thinking patterns and hinder concentration needed for school, work and normal life activities.
- Starts to fear that the spirit's control cannot be stopped.
- Wants isolation from friends and family.
- Thoughts of suicide are frequent and uncontrolled.
- Faster than normal movements of the head, arms and fingers. Does not happen all the time--only when the person loses control for a moment.
- Speaks out of turn in a social situation. What is said is not related to the current conversation.
- Shows agitation by swearing and cursing.

Total Possession:

- Not able to function in life.
- Needs to be institutionalized or commits suicide.
- The doctors diagnosis is mental insanity.

According to another researcher, clinical psychologist Edith Fiore, over 50 percent of those confined in mental hospitals in the United States are not insane but victims of spirit possession. I wonder what would be the estimated percentage in Philippine hospitals. Considering our people's greater sensitivity to spirit forces and poor diagnostic procedures, perhaps the percentage of possessed individuals confined in mental hospitals here is greater.

1. Have a positive, cheerful attitude. Since on the mental and spirit plane "like attracts like," a positive attitude will attract positive and benign spirits to you.

2. Maintain harmony and balance in your mind, body and spirit. Keep your emotional side especially in check and not prone to outbursts of anger.
3. Avoid being in the company of highly negative people or going to negative places. Negative individuals can sap your energy and drain you, thereby making spirit possession easier. The same in places with negative or earthbound spirits, for example, hospitals, cemeteries, wakes or haunted houses.
4. Remember you have free will. You are the master of your own life and destiny. Do not allow another entity to conquer or over-power your will. Remember even God respects our will and will not do anything to go against it. Only evil spirits try to overpower our will. Do not succumb to such attempts. Assert your will over any other entity and command it to "Begone!"
